Joint Summer School Venue

University of Iceland, Social Science Research Institute
Reykjavík, Iceland

Venue: Oddi, Room 101, Sturlugata 101, Reykjavík

Joint Summer School Scope

Joint Summer School on Public Sector Governance consisting of training modules, in the form of practical seminars. These modules will be focused on developing the necessary skills for public managers and managers of non-profit organizations to assist in the process for improvement of transparency, accountability and service delivery in public sector. Therefore, these skills will help by increasing the ability to perform better in the field of Public Sector Governance, at the level of governance and public sector management.

Participants will have the opportunity to:

- examine the underlying assumptions behind the ethical responsibilities of public officials and governments in democratic societies;
- critically evaluate the broader governance environment within which the public sector operates
- comprehend the way in which institutional arrangements and reforms promote or inhibit public policies and anticorruption strategies.
- assess norms and values related to the public service, developing effective policy processes;
- locate and use information concerning governance gathered through different informational channels: library, international databases, practitioners.
